

STORYTELLERS AT HEART.

A life story that will be shown to generations to come

Intimate. Editorial. Unscripted.

My approach to wedding videography is rooted in authenticity. I take on a fly-on-the-wall role quietly present, gently observant—capturing the small, fleeting moments that often go unnoticed. A quiet hand squeeze before the ceremony. The way your friends throw their heads back in laughter. That subtle glance between you and your partner that says everything.

Coming from a fashion videography background, I've worked with some of the most respected names in the industry—Vogue, H&M, Brown Thomas, FIELDS Jewellery, Russell & Bromley, and more. This experience has shaped my eye for detail and given me a deep appreciation for refined, editorial aesthetics. It's this same level of care, craft, and storytelling that I bring into every wedding I shoot.

My wedding films are a luxury alternative to the traditional style of videography. No staged poses or forced moments, just raw, beautiful footage edited into timeless, cinematic short films. I focus on the genuine energy of your day, with a particular emphasis on the connection between you and your partner, and the natural joy shared among your guests.

STORYTELLERS AT HEART.

In Leb Luo, my language from Northern Uganda, the word "Ariyo" means "two", a simple number that carries deep, symbolic meaning. At Ariyo Weddings, it reflects the heart of what we celebrate: the coming together of two people, two hearts, and two journeys into one shared future.

Ariyo Weddings is rooted in the belief that every love story deserves to be told with elegance, intention, and soul. With a refined editorial style and a deep cultural sensibility,

A photograph of three groomsmen in dark tuxedos with white shirts and black bowties, laughing joyfully. They are standing in front of a large, stone castle with multiple towers and crenellations. The sky is overcast. The groomsmen are wearing white floral boutonnieres. The image has a soft, cinematic quality.
